- Children can help bring in much needed income.
- Compulsory schooling might be psychological damaging for the students who are not motivated to learn

SECTION 5: EDUCATIONS ROLE

1. Should developing countries concentrate on Improving industrial skills or should they promote education first? 2. Education is a critical factor in a country's development. Opinion is divided, however, on whether a developing country with limited resources should give priority to improving and expanding basic education for the masses or to providing a high quality tertiary education for the future leaders.

Pd(1) - Why should improve and expand basic education? -

Everyone born to this world is equal and, hence, is entitled to receiving basic education. - Only by improving basic education could a poor nation encourage its people to discover their potential, which would translate into their knowledge and skills to be employed at work, thus/thereby improving productivity and, ultimately, living standards.- It's common people who make up the largest part of the workforce.- The moral question of equal opportunities for everyone. On what criteria can a young person be judged as a potential future leader or just as a common person?- Deprive the involved individual of higher education opportunity to explore his/her full potential, and might also deprive the nation of a potential clever leader.3. Describe the major purpose of education in society.- Well educated and good citizens.- Skillful and qualified workforce.4. Too much education is dangerous. If people receive more education than they need to function in their job, it only breeds dissatisfaction. For or against? -Preparation and practice 141 Too much education is dangerous?- Education gives people unrealistic ambitions: the law of the market decrees that not every one can be a managing director.- There is very little point in training people for a level of job that they can never hope to achieve.- Education is expensive. Overeducation is a waste of time and money. - Students tend to be a disruptive influence on society: found at the forefront of radical organisation.

Why should invest in education?- Most countries need a high standard of human resources in order to compete in the world market.- Uneducated people unable to show initiative.- Constantly changing technology means that the workforce has to be flexible and receptive to new ideas in order to be of value to employers.- Moral question: who has the right to say how much education a person is entitled to? What criteria could be used to decide a level of schooling?

5. Topic 19: Education is the single most important factor in the development of a country. Do you agree? Cuc 2

Why education is the most important factor?- Education provides basis for other skills.- Literacy improves working person ' s capability.- Creates self/ national respect.- Education provides basis for healthy population.

Why education is not the most important factor?- Health is more important than education.- Economic development is important, and may only need unskilled workers.- Difficult to find enough trained teachers.
