

2007年6月23日大学英语六级作文范文点点版 PDF转换可能丢失图片或格式，建议阅读原文

https://www.100test.com/kao_ti2020/467/2021_2022_2007_E5_B9_B46_E6_9C_c67_467303.htm Should one expect a reward when doing a good deed 1.有的人认为应该有回报 2.另外的人认为应该象雷锋一样不要回报 3.我的看法 参考范文： The argument over whether we do good deeds for a reward is heated. Some argue strongly that great deeds deserve recognition and acclaim. In this selfish and materialistic world, it is vitally important to recognize and promote various noble deeds. Rewarding and encouraging good deeds helps set an inspiring example to the public. The opposing view is that we should perform good deeds without expectations of any outcomes or rewards. Acknowledgements and credit shouldnt be given people who do good deeds with mixed motives. For example, some entrepreneurs supporting charity aims at tax reduction instead of lending a helping hand to others with a real motive. So we should do something good for others like Lei Feng without expectations of any economic and immaterial return. From my perspective, doing good deeds in exchange for rewards isnt an offense. We merit them. In fact, receiving sufficient public praise and attention serves as a contributing force behind the widespread promotion of good values. A role model sometimes outweighs a sole good deed. 100Test 下载频道开通，各类考试题目直接下载。详细请访问 www.100test.com